WHY PROTECT CROPS AND NOT MONEY?

When grain, vegetables, fruit, etc. are growing, they are carefully watched and protected until harvested and sold.

But the money realized from these crops, is that always adequately protected? Or is it kept in the home subject to theft and fire?

Open an account with this strong, reliable Institution and deposit all money as soon as received. Then pay all bills by check. This is practical protection.

HARKEN BACK ON THE PAST.

Twenty-five Years Ago This Week
Henry Favor is at home from Brookton, Mass., for the winter.

The mother, children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren are to have a family Thanksgiving gathering at Free-land Howe's. Four generations, eleven people in all.

A few friends, sixteen in number, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Leavitt, Monday evening to help make enjoyable the tenth anniversary of their marriage. The evening was pleasantly spent, a card party being one of the principal amusements. The occasion will well serve to mark a corner stone in the lives of the host and hostess.

T. L. Webb has made arrangement to open a branch store at Rumford Falls. Paris item: Nellie Brandham, a dwarf of this place, who is only 22 inches tall, is about to marry a young man who is nearly 6 feet tall.

Twenty-four Years Ago This Week
Freeland Howe, Jr., Verne M. Whitman and Robert Millett are home from Colby to spend Thanksgiving. The Edison phonograph at the Beal's Hotel is well patronized, Arthur Norworthy playing a cornet solo with it. Great attraction.

Five dollars was realized from J. W. Holden's Astronomical Lecture for the Public Library. Joseph proved the earth flat.

Jonas W. Swan has retired from the firm of Swan & Rowe, makers of clothing. G. P. Rowe will continue the business.

Rev. J. E. Budding is to move from North Norway to the village and open a tailoring shop in G. P. Rowe's coat shop.

Mrs. Charles H. Sargent of Portland has been the guest of Emma J. Smith. Ora Cook, who has been waiting on tables at Beal's Hotel, is now working in the office of the Novelty Turning Co., Monday.

The Browning Reading Club will be entertained Monday evening, November 29th by Mrs. Jennie Foster. The roll will be answered by quotations or music. The program will be as follows:

FRYEBURG

Richard Keefe has recently purchased the house owned and occupied by William Bean. Mr. Bean and family will now make their home in Farmington.

Information has been received of the very recent death of Miss S. Carolina Webster of Boston. She had been in ill health for some time and was operated on for appendicitis on November 5. She was considered to be getting along well.

J. W. Reynolds, who has been working in Ketchum all summer, has finished his work there and returned to his home in this place.

H. M. Kendall has finished pressing hay.

Fred Bartlett, who had the misfortune to hurt his foot quite badly, is improving slowly.

W. H. Powers has finished hauling dovetails for Latchford & Bryant.

Cereals in New England.

New England's poultry eat up ten times her total production of wheat. She uses many millions more bushels of oats than she raises. Each year she pays out many millions of dollars for small grains, flour and mill feed. This need of cereals in this section, as well as other advantages which would come from their production, makes the question one of great importance.

The possibility of raising sufficient cereals to supply the needs of New England depends on climate, soil and the variety of crops grown. On making a study of the climate of New England, one is impressed with the comparative similarity of range of temperature of widely separated points. This section enjoys a growing season of over six months' length, with frost limits of May 1 and April 15 in the south for the first spring frosts, and November 15 in the south for the first fall frosts. An abundant precipitation of 40 to 50 inches annually provides sufficient moisture. Soils vary from light sandy loam to heavy clay loam. Many of these soils are sadly depleted of fertility by continuous cropping to one crop. Plenty of organic matter must be supplied to these soils to keep them from being too hard and compact. Drainage is necessary. Sourness must be corrected by liberal applications of manure and fertilizer are necessary for good grain crops.

Better farming methods will return this much needed organic matter to New England soils, correct sourness and enrich the plant food. Grain is high and with western reports of millions of bushels of soft corn and a decreased acreage of winter wheat it surely is the opportunity for New England to grow more corn, wheat, oats, barley and buckwheat at a greater profit than ever before.

Alfred Long, who has been spending the summer in Nova Scotia and Rhode Island, has returned to this place and is stopping at H. M. Kendall's.

Latchford & Bryant have finished turning dovetails and have closed their mill.

David Long is working for H. M. Kendall.

Maine Highways.

The question is how to build and maintain good highways is one of the most important questions that confront the people of Maine today. From the standpoint of the business man in the city, the dweller in the country town, the farmer and the summer tourist, it is essential that the highways of Maine be improved year by year.

In the building of trunk lines or state highways, we are making progress. Miles of good road are being added every year. In the matter of laying out the routes, we believe our commission has been as fair to all sections of the state as it would be possible to be. All of our cities, county seats and many other towns, large and small, are on the route of one or more state highways which are being steadily improved. All this is very gratifying, for it means much to the business interests of our towns and cities, it means a steadily increasing tourist travel, and this in turn means more dollars for our hotels and summer resorts. While believing in state highways or trunk lines to accommodate the through travel between the large centers, also the tourist travel, it seems to me we are falling far short of the ideal in road building, in fact, doing thousands of people in our state an injustice, for we are to concentrate our whole effort and attention on our state highways, without regard to the other highways of Maine. It is only necessary to take a road map and study it carefully to show how many thousands of farms and small villages are not accommodated by the improved state highway in reaching their business center or market.

Our state highway law provides that a system of state aid highways shall be laid out, which shall connect adjoining towns and villages, serve outlying communities and facilitate travel in reaching markets, railroad connections and state roads.

As far as we have been able to learn, in many of our towns, the state aid roads are not being given the attention, especially in the towns through which a state highway is laid out. In other towns, usually no highway is designated as state aid road, and this highway receives the improvement, while perhaps two or three other roads, carrying just as much travel, are neglected. Is this right or just to thousands of farmers in our state? We do not doubt but what our commission is doing the best in its power for the highways of Maine, but unless we get at some system that will improve the highways leading into the towns as well as our through trunk lines, we are doing an injustice to thousands of our citizens.

Let us develop and improve our state highways more and more. We need them. But let us not neglect the other roads, especially the roads that lead over ridges and hills, for upon these roads thousands are dependent. Were they improved to any extent, there would be a heavy increase in travel upon them, land values would increase, and life in the country become more enjoyable.

Our commission has laid out a fine system of state highways, fair to all. Now let it lay out an interlocking system of state aid roads, which shall include the other principal roads in each town leading to the business centers or between villages, and let our towns care for the neighborhood roads, cross-roads and private roads as they are doing today.

We understand our commission has provided for a system that will cover all sections of the state highways, whether improved or not. Let them also provide a road patrol for the roads leading into the towns and if this is not possible under our present law, let us change it so it will be possible.

It seems to me that the ideal in our movement for good roads is to make all roads good roads. By this I do not mean that it is practical or possible to make all roads as wide or graded the same as our state highways. Thousands of farms are situated on roads which are of neighborhood importance only; others on roads which may serve perhaps the farm alone or two or three other farms. The last named road leads out into the road used by a whole farming district; this road leads out into a main highway which leads between villages and from other farming districts into the farmers' business center, the nearest stores and railroad station. This last named highway is the one that should be under state control, subject to state aid, for whatever improvement is made on this highway is enjoyed not only by the many farmers situated on the main highway, but all of the other farmers on the roads leading into the same must drive over this highway to reach town.

It is our zeal for the improvement of our state highways, let us not forget the other highways leading between villages and farming districts, for these highways must be used year in and year out by approximately two-thirds of the farmers of Maine.

THANKFUL IN PEACE.

The Pilgrim Fathers were thankful because they had won a livelihood from a bleak and barren land. With each succeeding year the nation has had a greater cause for thankfulness. Prosperity and abundant harvests have given us occasion to rejoice and bow down with overflowing hearts before the Maker of all things good.

Today we have even more cause for thanksgiving. Alone of the great civilized nations we are at peace. The United States is the supply house of the world. The other nations are our debtors. Business, after a period of depression, is again normal. The problem is growing less acute. Currency is more elastic and as a result of the reserve banking system, credit may be had more easily.

We would not boast after the manner of the Pharisees about these things. Prosperity has been forced upon us, if there is any lesson in all this, it is that we prepare ourselves for the thin years that may come after the war.

But, best of all, the nation is at peace. No wounded soldiers are pouring back into our cities. Our women and children have not been forced into the fields and factories. We are not taxing ourselves or pledging the earning power of future generations to pay a war loan. We are not in mourning for our boys lost at the front.

The storms which so very recently threatened us appear to have blown over. It has been difficult to avoid being drawn into the whirlwind of war. Today the festival means more to us than roast turkey and the fruits of autumn. Even the more thoughtless of us are truly thankful and approach the day in a chastened mood.

Tobacco, Like Food, Must Be
Fresh To Be Good

Real tobacco flavor depends upon the leaf being served in its natural state, possible only by pressing leaves into plug form and keeping it in by covering with a natural leaf wrapper. The natural flavor and strength of tobacco escape when cut or granulated.

Take a Plug of Sickle that is even thoroughly dried so that when you whittle it off it crumbles into dust, will burn and smoke smooth and cool as it has all of its original tobacco flavor preserved, unevaporated in Plug Plug.

Whittling a pipeful is little trouble, amply repaid in both quality and quantity. Try this experiment and judge for yourself.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third man has catarrh in some form. Science has shown that nasal catarrh indicates a general weakness in the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause, enriching your blood with the food in Scott's Emulsion which is a building tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.

PURE RICH BLOOD
PREVENTS DISEASE

Bad blood—that is, blood that is impure or impoverished, thin and pale—is responsible for more ailments than anything else.

It affects every organ and function. In some cases it causes catarrh; in others, dyspepsia; in others, rheumatism; and in still others, weak, tired, languid feelings and worse troubles. It is responsible for run-down conditions, and is the most common cause of disease.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest purifier and enricher of the blood the world has ever known. It has been wonderfully successful in removing scrofula and other humors, increasing the red-blood corpuscles, and building up the whole system. Get it today.
